His Excellency Sung Y. Kim

Ambassador
Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary
United States of America to the Republic of the Philippines
Honorary Member,
Rotary Club of Manila

The ambassador ought to file for an extension since he was such a driving force in pursuing good relations between the Philippines and the United States despite the political climate.

Ambassador Sung Y. Kim's stint in the Philippines has been the most colourful in his long history as a career diplomat for the United States. With the overall thrust of the U.S. embassy and all its sub-sectors to foster good diplomatic relations with the Philippines, they took great strides to open dialogues and build relationships with key figures in the Duterte administration.

The ambassador keenly met with cabinet members to voice out the concerns of the business community, as well as to air the side of the U.S. on various issues from a diplomatic standpoint.

Additionally, the U.S. has strengthened its new Development Finance Corporation to USD 60 billion. This marks a key point in showing confidence in the economic partnership between the two nations.

The hope is that U.S. companies can also take part in the "Build, Build, Build" initiative in order to foster knowledge and best practice sharing between the two nations (the U.S. has a wealth of knowledge and experience in the field of infrastructure and public works).

Amb. Kim urged American companies to keep their CSR activities and make these activities known to the general public since it could be a good catalyst for improving U.S.-Philippine relations. Unfortunately, he said, a lot of these initiatives usually go under the radar.

Lastly, the ambassador assured that the U.S. is still committed to honouring the bilateral defense treaty with the Philippines and promises to uphold the rule of UNCLOS (United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea) with regard to the West Philippine Sea issue versus China.

Along with the current heated climate, tension is brewing as China continues to make aggressive moves in the disputed territories. Regardless of the situation, the U.S. is committed to uphold the agreement and will come to the Philippines' aid at the drop of a needle.

Dear Fellow Rotarians,

Every once in a while in our life, we come across very special exceptional people, people who have a great effect on us and in their humble ways give us insight and opportunities to emulate the very way they behave. Such is the person who is our Guest of Honor and Speaker today. His Excellency, the Ambassador of the United States of America, is exactly the kind of person. Today is his last speech before the Rotary clubs of our country. He will bid us goodbye, but, we will remember him fondly today as we did yesterday and will be for tomorrow. Ambassador, the Rotary Club of Manila wishes you the very best in every endeavor and we hope and pray for your greatest success in every facet of your life and every endeavor you wish to attain and every goal you strive for. In behalf of the Rotary Club of Manila, we dedicate this day to you while we thank you for the services you have done for our country.

Best,

Jackie

SPAIN ACCELERATES INTERNATIONALISM

Speaking before an engaged audience, His Excellency Jorge Moragas, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Kingdom of Spain to the Republic of the Philippines, outlined the role of Spain in world affairs. He traced the almost 500 year relationship between Spain and the Philippines and how his country, gradually, though belatedly, upheld the tenets of internationalism. He pointed out that Spain is slowly entering the Asian market with its investments as manifested in the various Spanish brands presently flooding the Asian sphere. According to him, bilateral relations of Spain and the Philippines have not reached their fullest potential and the Philippines, having experienced twenty (20) continuous years of high economic growth, a clear commitment, possessor of sound macro-economic fundamentals and a ready disposition to attract private investors to fill in the infrastructure gaps, is now ready to face a bright tomorrow which marries a glorious ancestral beginning and a future perfectly infused with a Spanish touch of class.

REMEMBERING DEARLY DEPARTED... And Avoiding Stress

Elias D. Adamos, M.D.

Because of the heavy traffic and the expected traffic scenario come All Saints' Day and All Souls' Day, not to mention Halloween night parties, more and more people do their graveyard cleaning, repainting, and visits to their dearly departed, weeks earlier from the traditional date to avoid the celebrating crowd. Others even go to the cemetery after the first two days of November, to play it safe. The traffic that has escalated to "crisis" proportions, or "catastrophic" levels, as one authoritative urban planner claims it to be, can be very stressful to most people, if not to all of us. And stress can develop into illness or a sick condition, including high blood pressure, heart attack, and stroke. Logically translated, this means: "Stress shortens life."

Let us tackle the first one. Why should you avoid the cemetery stress? Visit to the cemetery is like a party and a reunion. A party and a reunion can be stressful because of some reasons: 1. You're expected to leave for the province for the traditional "undas" but you have limited resources. You are limited because of some financial reasons; 2. Toxic relatives. You expect to see relatives, friends, former business partners and associates, and other people whom you are trying to avoid. Worse, you might be trying to avoid the "mangungutang (people who always ask for dole outs and cash from you);" 3. Unhappy memories. Visit to the cemetery might bring about the recall of some unhappy memories; and 4. Life changing events like separation from family, removal from a job, marital discord, chronic illness, retirement, etc. can add up to the tension.

Avoid traffic stress because traffic kills. But if you can't avoid it, don't forget to smile. And just ride on, man! One of the President's cabinet members was quoted to have said, "Maging maparaan sa trapik (Be creative in traffic)." A female lawyer friend of mine, who works at the Senate, couldn't care less about the traffic, "Ang dami kong nagagawa (I can do many things)." According to her, when caught in traffic, she catches up on her readings, polishes some legal documents, and even has her house-call manicure and pedicure, including massage, inside her van. Reality is really funnier than fiction! Yes, you can be creative when you're stuck up in traffic and you're traveling with your wife, children, and friends: 1. Tell stories. 2. Make fun of motorists around you. And don't forget to LOL (laugh out loud). 3. Bring a minus one or sing-along CD and do some group singing inside the car. 4. Read the newspaper. 5. Listen to the radio. Commentaries about politics and religion can be funny. Just blurt it out. Laugh again. 6. Tell jokes, no matter how old or how overplayed they may be. 7. Tease and play "romantic" with your wife, perhaps like: Husband: Traffic ka ba (Are you traffic)? Wife: Bakit (Why)? Husband: Kasi forever ka (Because you're forever). Hahaha!

Other ways to avoid stress this Undas and the rest of the year

Map out your day. Carefully plan your trips. Unload unnecessary activities. Take time to breathe. Relax. Reflect. Analyze the problem and simplify the solution. Good luck to all of us. Always stay healthy. Expect the worst. Hope for the best.
