THE Rotary Club of Manila (RCM), the first Rotary Club in Asia, stands on a legacy so vast that it casts both a luminous light and a long shadow. As we approach the curtain call of this Rotary year, the aptly titled program, PAST PRESENT FUSION: THE RCM CONTINUING STORY, calls for honest reflection — not only on our triumphs but more critically, on the challenges that confront our beloved Club in the present day.

There is no denying that RCM's history is illustrious. We are heirs to a tradition built by captains of industry, statesmen, and civic giants who shaped a century of service in the Philippines. And yet, that very heritage sometimes becomes our burden. The weight of our past can make us resistant to change, hesitant to experiment, and wary of voices that don't fit neatly into the mold of how things were always done. The world has changed, but has RCM changed with it — deeply, structurally, meaningfully?

At the heart of our present struggle is relevance. In an age where younger generations are mobilized not by prestige but by purpose, where collaboration outpaces hierarchy, and where causes are measured not by decades of tradition but by direct, tangible impact, RCM often finds itself speaking in a language fewer people understand. We continue to host programs of substance, yes — but are we listening to what the public truly needs? Are we inspiring the next wave of leaders to believe that Rotary is still the best platform for lasting change? Or are we holding on to forms and titles while letting the spirit that once made us magnetic slowly slip away?

Our demographics are aging. Our rituals, while steeped in history, sometimes feel performative rather than transformative. There remains, in too many corners of the Club, a reluctance to yield the microphone to newer voices, to question sacred cows, to simplify bureaucracy, and to open ourselves up to new ways of serving that reflect the complexity and pace of the world we live in today.

Moreover, we are challenged by internal fatigue — by good men worn thin by constant expectations but limited encouragement. We are challenged by the perception, whether fair or not, that RCM has become a club for the privileged, not a crucible for inclusive leadership. And we are challenged by inertia — the quiet but dangerous idea that survival alone is success.

But challenges, when confronted with clarity and courage, become opportunities. We need to return to first principles — not ceremonial pageantry, but the essence of Rotary: service above self, fellowship with purpose, and leadership that listens more than it proclaims. We need to recognize that legacy is not what we inherit; it's what we transform. If we are truly to continue the story, we must write new chapters — not rewrites of old glories, but bold narratives that capture the urgency of now.

Our path forward lies in fusion, not fossilization. We honor the past not by repeating it, but by using it as a foundation to innovate, collaborate, and lead in ways that reflect our times. The challenge is not merely organizational — it is cultural. It requires humility from the old guard and courage from the new blood. It requires a willingness to sit at the same table, not as gatekeepers and guests, but as partners shaping one Rotary story — together.

RCM's continuing story will be defined not by the years we've existed, but by the lives we've changed and the leaders we've inspired. The question is not whether we can survive another century. The real question is: can we evolve quickly enough to matter in the next decade?

Past. Present. Fusion. The challenge is not behind us. It is right here, right now. The future will not wait. Neither should we.

by PVP Reginald T. Yu

IN the verdant sanctum of the Manila Polo Club, where the walls carry the hush of diplomacy and the breeze hums with history, the Rotary Club of Manila convened its 33rd Weekly Membership Meeting on a Thursday afternoon suffused with reverence and resonance. Though the sky bore no remarkable omens, what unfolded within was no ordinary convergence — it was a mosaic of past and present, duty and dream, ritual and revelation.

The absence of President Eduardo “Jujut” Enriquez III was gracefully filled by Past District Governor Alexander “Alex” P. Cureg, who called the meeting to order with a calm authority that set the tone for what would become an extraordinary afternoon. In a world where schedules are scribbled in haste and attention scatters across digital landscapes, the men and women of the Rotary stood rooted — Rotarians in body and in spirit, faces bright with curiosity and commitment.

Past District Governor Alexander "Alex" P. Cureg, who stepped into the role of Acting Presiding Officer, called the meeting to order.

Rtn. Delfin "Del" N. Lorenzana moderated the meeting.

Rotarian Raymond "Ray" N. Davis led the invocation, his voice a soft candle in a sacred hush. As the Philippine National Anthem echoed through an audio-visual tribute featuring RCM members, a sense of shared belonging emerged like mist from deep waters. The anthem bled seamlessly into the Rotary Hymn, lifted in majestic unison by the RCM World-Famous Music Chorale, whose harmonies brushed the very rafters with pride.

Rotarian Raymond "Ray" N. Davis led the invocation.

RCM World-Famous Music Chorale led the singing of the Rotary Hymn.

Then, STAR Rotarian Ingill Ra stood before the assembly to lead the Four-Way Test — questions as simple as they are profound, echoing not just within the room, but in the deeper architecture of every Rotarian’s conscience.

STAR Rotarian Ingill Ra stood before the assembly to lead the Four-Way Test.

Rotarian Delfin “Del” N. Lorenzana, former Secretary of National Defense and a quiet force of precision and presence, acknowledged the guests with eloquent brevity. A welcome song followed — melodic, ceremonious, and grounding. The ritual had concluded. And yet, the real ceremony was about to begin.

Past District Governor Alexander “Alex” P. Cureg, in his capacity as Acting President, delivered the President’s Time.

Chair Nico Valencia (Golf Tournament) and Chair Amading Valdez (Journalism Awards), announced and encouraged everyone to join and attend the forthcoming Golf Tournament and Journalism Awards this June.

A Korean Dream: Ingill Ra's Testament

He introduced himself not as a guest, but as a witness.

Ingill Ra, STAR Rotarian and Regional Chairman of the Global Peace Foundation, approached the podium without pomp. What followed was less a speech than a sweeping soliloquy — part memoir, part hymn, part call to destiny. He told the story not merely of a man from Korea addressing a Filipino audience, but of two nations whose souls had brushed in the crucible of history.

The year was 1950, he reminded us — an era that to many seems dusted in sepia but remains vibrant in memory. Kim Il-sung, hungry with the shadow of empire, launched an invasion of South Korea. The world watched, but 16 nations rose — not least among them, the Philippines. From these islands, 7,400 young Filipinos crossed seas to a place they had never known. They did not go to conquer. They went to save.

There was a pause, then a question spoken not aloud, but hung in the air:
Who are we to one another?

To Ingill Ra, the answer was clear. The Korean story is incomplete without the Filipino chapter. And the Filipino valor of old breathes today in those gathered, who carry both the burden and the glory of that legacy. He gestured to the 500-peso bill — a national talisman overlooked by many. On it, a young Benigno Aquino Jr., war correspondent at 17, and a quiet sentinel of history. “This bill,” he said, “is worth 5 million pesos — not in economy, but in memory.”

Ra’s narrative unfurled with seamless grace. He recalled the bravery of Fidel Ramos, then a young West Point graduate, who led troops in the snows of a foreign peninsula, returning one day not just to his homeland but to its highest office. A man shaped by war, molded by peace.

Of Caves, Gods, and Garlic

As if pulled by a thread backward through millennia, Ra transported his listeners to Korea’s mythic origins. To the cave where a tiger fled but a bear endured, became a woman, and birthed Dangun — the progenitor of a people. A tale not just of transformation, but of patience, sacrifice, and divinity woven into bloodlines.

And from Dangun came the ethos: Hongik Ingan — “To benefit all humanity.” He invited his audience to repeat it, to taste the syllables of Korea's heart. "This is our DNA," he said, "this is why we do not conquer. This is why we serve."

Yet, he did not end there. Instead, he held up a mirror.

"You, the Filipinos," he said, "you carry an even more profound ethos." Then he spoke — deliberately, reverently — Makadiyos, Makatao, Makakalikasan, Makabansa.

Here, language became a bridge. And what a sacred thing it is to hear one's values echoed by another, not in translation but in truth. It is rare, in an age of transactional diplomacy, to witness such vulnerable admiration. Ra was not simply visiting — he was pilgrimaging.

He marveled: "You are not just inhabitants of this Earth — you are co-creators with God." The room, which had weathered the soft swells of routine gatherings before, now brimmed with something finer than formality. Something holy.

From Borders to Brotherhood

Ra spoke of the present with the same clarity as he did the past. August 15 loomed — a day sacred in Korean memory, the anniversary of independence from Japanese rule. But this year, it holds a deeper yearning: unification.

He invited the Rotarians of Manila to stand again beside Korea — not in war, but in peace. To join him in the DMZ, not as soldiers, but as bearers of shared values. "We are brothers and sisters under one God," he declared, "and if we share this vision, we do not just change Korea — we change the world."

The campaign he introduced, "The Korean Dream 10 Million," is no empty petition. It is a movement. A call for peace not as a fragile truce, but as a civilization's foundation.

Closing, But Not Ending

The forum opened. Questions flickered like fireflies — curious, warm, sincere.

Ra responded not as a lecturer, but as a fellow traveler. And as the meeting drew toward its end, Rotarian Del Lorenzana offered a political readout not of partisanship, but of purpose.

STAR Rtn. Ingill Ra engaged in an interactive conversation with PD Alex Cureg, PD Amading Valdez, Rtn. Caloy Serapio, PD Abe Pascual, and DG Jackie Rodriguez.

Then, in a gesture echoing old customs and new respect, PDG Alex Cureg presented Ra with a certificate of appreciation — a humble parchment that might never capture the vastness of what had transpired, yet symbolized its solemnity.

PDG Alex Cureg presented STAR Rtn. Ingill Ra with a certificate of appreciation.

Post-Mortem Political Readout

PD Amading Valdez, VPE Ricky Guevara, Rtn. Gani Macatoman, DG Jackie Rodriguez, and Rtn. Caloy Serapio actively engaged in sharing their thoughts, opinions, and observations from the recently concluded national mid-term elections.

And then the meeting closed.

But none present left as they came.

The Heart Beyond the Minutes

Beyond timetables and titles, the Rotary Club of Manila's 33rd meeting was a convocation of deeper tides. In the sharing of ethos, in the weaving of old wars into new hopes, something sacred passed from soul to soul.

It was more than diplomacy. More than fraternity. It was the reawakening of a truth that history had written, but the present was only now learning to read again.

We are not separate. Not then. Not now.

And as Ingill Ra reminded us, not ever.

PDG Alex Cureg presented adjourned the meeting.
